GETTING FROM THE AIRPORT TO SPLIT PORT

A bus operated by Croatia Airlines departs from just outside the terminal door. You buy the ticket from the driver (Kuna 30). It takes about 30 minutes to get to the city centre.

There is also a local bus that goes to the bus station in Split to and from Trogir every 20 minutes from a stop on the road in front of the Airport Terminal.

A taxi to Split costs about Kuna 250.

The airport bus stop is just outside the old town, at the east end of the Riva. From there you can see the ferry, a short walk away. Next to the bus stop is a ticket booth for Jadrolinija, the ferry company, where you can buy your ferry tickets (Kuna 36 per person, car (Kuna 240 one way)).

Alternatively, you can buy them at the ferry terminal itself. There is a left luggage facility opposite the ferries if you want to leave your luggage while you explore Split (Kuna 15 per piece).

FERRY FROM SPLIT

The most direct and easy route is to fly to Split and get the ferry or hydrofoil from there direct to Hvar town on the Island Hvar.

If you are in Split, to reach Hvar Island you can chose between:

- Hydrofoil to town Hvar in 45 minutes, passenger only, no pets allowed!!
- Ferry in 1.5 hours, which takes passenger, pets and cars

The ferries and hydrofoils run from Split to Stari Grad, three or four times a day.

FERRY FROM SPLIT

Please note no tickets for local transportation can be booked in advance.

Only in case of hydrofoils from Split to Hvar can be bought one day in advance at local travel agencies.

Ferries transporting cars arrive in the port of Starigrad, the second biggest town on the island of Hvar, 20 minutes car ride to the town of Hvar. For those driving once in Hvar town you can leave your car in the public parking lot.

For those on foot, from Starigrad, take bus or taxi to Hvar town, only 20 minutes away.

VIA DUBROVNIK

Another good option is to fly into Dubrovnik, and ferry or bus to Split and Stari Grad.

Airlines like British Airways and Germanwings serve both airports and you can, if you wish, do a one way car hire between the two.

Dubrovnik is about 200 km down the coast from Split.

The direct ferry service from Dubrovnik to Stari Grad leaves in mid morning and taking about 6 hours.

You could drive from Dubrovnik, perhaps picking your car up from Dubrovnik Airport and dropping it at Split Airport.

You could go get onto the island via the short ferry crossing from Drvenik, about 110km up the coast from Dubrovnik, to beautiful Sucuraj on the eastern end of Hvar Island, from where it is an adventurous and scenic drive to Stari Grad. Public transport is not good, however, so it is a difficult option without a car.

Or, you could take a bus from Dubrovnik to Split and get the ferry from there.

VIA OTHER ROUTES

If you are driving or travelling from Italy, you can leave daily with an overnight ferry service from the ports of Ancona, Pescara and Bari to Split or Starigrad, on the island of Hvar.

During the summer, some Italian hydrofoil lines offer a direct service from Pescara and Ancona to Hvar Island, port of Starigrad.

You could combine a visit to Venice or Trieste in Italy, both of which are served by a variety of low cost airlines.

EasyJet flies from London Stanstead, then you can bus to Rijeka and take the Jadrolinija ferry overnight down the coast, get off at Stari Grad (calls through Split)... a great ride!

Coming from Italy you can take the ferry from Ancona to Split, or Pescara direct to Stari Grad. Further south you can go direct to Dubrovnik from Bari.

Or, you could take a ferry from Ancona in Italy, direct to Stari Grad.

Ryanair flies to Ancona.

Or, you could take a ferry from Rimini via Split.
